

Sitting in the sustainable seat

Dodge Interiors will soon have one of the very first eco friendly upholstery ranges in its shop in Sherborne, made by furniture designers Tetrad. The range uses natural materials, which are obtained from renewable sources and have been produced in an ecologically sound way, with the aim of keeping chemicals out of the home environment. Sustainable hardwood, serpentine and coil springing, feather cushions and cotton covers of only the finest quality are all used to provide uncompromising comfort and style.

Adrian Dodge comments: "Not only are our customers more interested in how they can make environmentally sound purchasing decisions but leading furniture designers, such as Tetrad, are now addressing environmental issues and producing furniture more responsibly. We are really pleased to have the new Tetrad range in our shop, which shows all the quality and use of natural products we love in upholstery. Gone are the chemicals and any foam which may have crept in and back in is horse hair, hardwood frames, coil springing, feather and down, cottons and linens. It is exciting to see designs evolve and we are very much looking forward to introducing the new eco friendly range into our shop."

The new eco friendly Tetrad range includes a variety of designs including spacious corner sofas, traditional sofas and sofas with elegantly carved, hand-waxed hardwood frames. There is also a selection of armchairs in a variety of beautiful colourways; rose, ice blue, apple, taupe and natural as well as beautiful crafted antique hide covered armchairs.
